Turquoise
Rings

Who doesn't love the beautiful azure blue of the turquoise. It is native to New Mexico and is our favorite jewel and the mines here turn out some of the most beautiful turquoise in the world. We have recently received some of the finest turquoise stones we ever had, beautifully cut and polished and which we have mounted in brooches and rings, the favorite "MATINEE" ring. For one week beginning May 1st we shall place these on sale at 25 per cent below their real value, thus affording everyone an opportunity to possess one of these beautiful rings. Look in our windows and note these prices and then step inside and secure one. It will be a long time before a like opportunity occurs again.

JACK KROH IS BIG MEDICINE MAN

Poor Lo is Too Cunning for the Evil Spirit. But is Hard on the Pottery.

Jack Kroh, the Santa Fe special officer, has a new camera that he is exhibiting to his friends. The peculiar thing about this camera is the way it takes pictures. Jack decided that among the most picturesque subjects to be photographed around the station were the Indians who carry pottery in front of the Harvey curio rooms. As Jack is a special friend of several of the old Indian chiefs, he had little difficulty in getting one of them to pose for him.

"Now look pleasant," said Jack, and the old aborigine scowled more than ever. Then Jack pressed the button. And at this point the peculiar properties of his camera manifested themselves. Instead of simply snapping open and shut with a click as a normal and well-behaved camera should do, the whole front of Mr. Kroh's picture box opened out, and a monstrous snake made a jump for poor Lo. But the coming of the Indian was here demonstrated, to amply refute those pessimists who declare that civilization is robbing him of his former craftiness. Big Chief gave a jump as quick as the snake came out of the box, but alas and alack, he jumped so quick that he didn't exactly look where he was going to land, and as luck would have it, he came down in about two dollars' worth of pottery.

If we may take Jack's word for it, they are still picking up the pieces of Indian handicraft that were scattered by Lo's sudden move.

The Harvey Indians now regard Mr. Kroh as a sort of medicine man because he can make the evil spirit come out the picture box. However, Jack can't get over "havin'" about it. The mysterious camera is a clever toy, which consists of a box in exact imitation of a kodak, wherein is enclosed a snake, which is propelled out of the front by a spiral spring upon pressing the button.

The men are perfect types of the irresponsible, happy-go-lucky cowpuncher, whose serenity of spirit nothing can long disturb. It is entirely believable that if they were to be sentenced to be immersed in boiling oil they would go on playing the jewsharp and smoking cigarettes until the time came for the execution of the sentence.

When seen this morning the men denied that they were guilty of the charge lodged against them and declared that their prosecutor would have to "come to a show down and show better than aces up" in order

Nobles of Ballut Abyad Are Preparing to Give Novices
All They Have Coming to Them in Degree Work.

Irons are heating and brands are being forged by the nobles of Ballut Abyad shrine, in anticipation of the big events to take place at the new Masonic Temple in this city, and the end of this month. An unusually large caravan of the elect is said to be journeying, even now, toward Ballut Abyad temple, across the reclaimed Saharas of New Mexico, and the hospitable impulses of the Nobles here assembled are taking tangible shape.

The goal of the pilgrims is Mecca, the Sacred, and their feet are tender, unaccustomed to the burning sands. In order to accustom the novices to the desert pathway, the experienced Nobles are preparing sands so hot that when they have been crossed, the novitiates will fear no sands again, however terrible. Starved camels and goats, at present kept in dungeons at the temple, will appreciate the fresh greenness of the candidates. As imperial edicts preclude the possibility of a street parade, the Mecca pilgrims will go their way in darkness to the end. A safe convoy is assured those with enough presence of mind to "keep hold of the rope."

A little poem has been written by the Ballut Abyad poet-estate, as a sort of requiem for those who falter by the wayside. Like all good woe-isms it has a happy ending, wit-does.

THE DAY AFTER.
When the Burning Sands crossed over,

Novice, dear,
You won't feel like pigs in clover,

Novice, dear,
You'll be bruised and skinned and sore,

After you've mopped up the floor,
But you'll be forever more.

A Shriner, dear.

Then when you stand up and eat,

O Shriner, dear,

For you can't sit in your seat,

O Shriner, dear,
You'll forget the path you've went,

You'll forget the wild goat's scent,
And the tortures they invent.

For Shriners, dear.

PICTURES ARE TAKEN
AT MESILLA COLLEGE

Photographer Makes Some Interesting Studies of Scenes About School for Art of Farming in Lower Valley.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.)

Agriculture College, May 13.—Mr. Rollene Banner, a photographer from El Paso, who has a studio here and has been making photos for the annual, is now busy taking pictures for the college. These pictures show many interesting scenes about the college and on the farms, students doing practice periods in the fields, studying the many different kinds of machinery or livestock, also the students at work in the engineering building, the manual training shops, the chemical and biological laboratories, and the domestic science department.

Duplicates of these pictures will be put on slides which President Garrison will use to illustrate a series of lectures which he will give this summer while touring the territory in the interest of the college. It is expected that in this way prospective students and their parents can have a definite idea of the amount of practical work that is done here each year, and of the adequate equipment supplied by the college for the benefit of the students.

At a recent meeting of the Agricultural club, an organization composed of male students, the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President—Andrew Pattison. Vice President—Herbert Smith. Secretary—H. N. Aragon.

The chairman of the various committees will not be selected until the opening of the coming school year. This is one of the oldest scientific societies in existence in New Mexico. The principal objects of the club are to promote interest in the study of scientific agriculture, and to conduct research work, etc., for the benefit of the members. The agricultural instructors and many members of the alumni and honorary members.

Much interest was manifested in the play, a three-act comedy, given last night in Hadley hall by the students under the direction of Professor Ray M. Wilcox. It is called the "Ex-Collegian," with a cast of twenty characters and was said to equal if not eclipse the one given earlier in the season by the faculty members.
